

LA FOLLETTE FORGES HAVE NOW MERGED WITH ROOSEVELT'S IN PRELIMINARY ORGANIZATION TO DEFEAT SENATOR ROOT

FIGHT FROM THE DROP OF THE HAT WHEN CHAIRMAN ROSEWATER READS CALL FOR REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

BIG CONVENTION OPENS

McGovern's Name Presented for Temporary Chairmanship by Henry Cochems of Milwaukee and Seconded by Roosevelt Men Throughout the Hall.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Ill., June 18.—Convention hall—All is excitement at 4:00 P. M., and no temporary organization yet perfected.

Taft's Picture Lacking.

For the first time in the history of the republican national convention no picture of the president of the United States was hung in the convention hall today where 1,075 delegates from states and territories of the United States met to name a president and vice-president and to formulate a party platform.

Rough iron work arching over head hidden by red, white and blue bunting and the gallery was marked by lines of tri-colored laurel with flags draped about tri-colored shields. At the box of the chairman of the committee on arrangements, Frederick Upham, was a velvet rug of royal purple. The chairman's table bearing a brass plate which was inscribed to inform all that the table was occupied by the chairman four years ago when William Howard Taft was nominated, stands about a third of the way back from the south end of the rectangular hall.

Arrangement of Seats.

Back of this are the seats for the republican national committee and the seats for the "Workers" and those who helped finance the gathering. At the sides are the places for the newspaper men where every word will be taken down and put away to be given to the millions of people in this country and many persons in other lands who will await the message of the men at the key. In addition the press men have great spacious rooms where a hundred telegraph operators or reporters may work for each association or paper, and adjoining companies are attended by five hundred messengers for convey the information abroad.

Cliffhanger on the wall back of the speaker's stand which fronts the chairman's table hangs a broad blue shield on which are embroidered in gold the arms of the United States. Copies of the first thirteen stars, flag of the nation are above and below it.

No Waving of Flags.

In front of the chairman's table are 1078 hard plain kitchen chairs, in groups unnumbered and fastened to the floor. There will be no waving of flags. Here also are metal stands and these also are fastened to the floor. Partition back and facing the same direction are yet another 1078 chairs, hard and unnumbered for the alternates of the delegates who will be ready in the absence of the regular delegates to represent their district.

Oppose Roosevelt Plan.

Every possible effort is being made by the Roosevelt managers to have the Taft leaders agree to accept and abide by this proposal. Illinois friends of Congressman William B. McKinley, the president's campaign manager, sought to have him agree to the out the aisles and seats.

The first click of the "banners" of the Taft operators began to be audible near the platform about 10 o'clock as the press with its scores of workers began the task of streaming out the story of 1912 convention to the newspapers of the world.

At 11:16 the band broke out in "My Country 'Tis of Thee." A few persons recognized the strains and stood up with their hands bare. To most of the people, however, a band is a band and a tune is a tune. It makes no matter.

A small striped flag ran out, the music of the Coliseum fell in and out of the door between the legs of the men and chairs with the evident good humor secured in the business at which all the spectators in the hall outside were on the edge.

Delegates Take Places.

By ten thirty a. m. there was a goodly sprinkling of delegates from New York, Mississippi and Texas in the hall and still outside streamed hundreds of people more or less prominent in republican camps who found it impossible to get into the big hall.

A silver service was placed at the table of the chairman at 10:45. A big mahogany gavel and sounding board of the same material was placed before the chairman. Root, Senator Borah or whoever else might be chosen as temporary chairman. Chairman Root of the national committee and sergeant-at-arms Stone bent over the tables in conference and Colonel Stone played with the gavel as though he would sound the rap that would call the convention to order and "start the momentous happenings of the day."

Chaos is Unconcerned.

Charles H. Miller, President Taft's secretary made his appearance on the convention platform before eleven o'clock. His countenance showed no worry or grave concern over the outcome of the session.

The members of the national committee made their appearance, one by one. The N. H. delegates were already in their seats and made cheers for Root, who he appeared on the convention floor.

President Taft unexpectedly drew a delegate from the Pennsylvania today through the Illinois of Mr. Cooper of the 23rd district. Mr. Cooper is a Roosevelt man but his alternate Newcomer is a Taft man. Cooper was unable to attend the convention.

Wisconsin Men Yell.

The yell of the Wisconsin delegation sounded strong and clear when they entered the convention hall. "U rah, rah, Wisconsin! U rah, rah, Wisconsin! Rah!"

The California delegation then entered amid cheers of "The Opening Gun."

Some of the delegates tried to sing but it was a sorry effort.

Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth and Nicholas Longworth occupied advantageous seats right back of the president's stand. Kermit Roosevelt was the first member of the colonel's family to arrive at the hall. He came in with R. R. McCormick of Chicago, one of the Roosevelt leaders.

Governor Hadley of Missouri, the Roosevelt floor leader, had a seat equally as prominent as that occupied by Jas. E. Watson of Indiana, the Taft floor leader.

"U rah, rah, boom!" was followed by much confusion when the first sharp call was given at 12:15 and announced that the important flash-light was about to be taken. The crowd was quiet.

Then came a tremendous "boom" as the flash-light exploded. The band began to play "The Star Spangled Banner."

"The hour of twelve" having arrived and Roosevelt producing a slip of paper and a quorum sheet, waving it, stating that the convention would be called to order, while the Rev. Father Galloway will invoke the divine blessing.

There was a total perturbation among the Taft forces as to whether or not the two delegates from the Fourth California district would be seated on the floor of the convention. There was relief felt when word was received that the two Taft delegates had received tickets and would sit with the delegates from Alaska.

The advent of the West Virginia delegation was greeted with applause and at this time the Indiana delegation now and then greeted a new arrival with the delegation yell, "Roosevelt—Virginia," that echoed through the big hall.

New Jersey and other Roosevelt delegations took up the cry, led by the yell:

"Rah, rah, rah! Who are we? We are from New Jersey!"

We are here to give our 28 To Teddy straight.

Charles Taft, brother of President Taft visited the Taft delegates and asked them to sit firm in the vote and not to be affected by the Roosevelt cheers.

As William Flinn entered a cheer went up, "What is the matter with Flinn? He's all right," and then the Pennsylvania delegates, and then the Roosevelt yell of "Hoory, hoory—Pennsylvania!"

West Virginia answered Pennsylvania with yells for "Teddy, Teddy" and New Jersey also.

The convention was called to order at 12:02 p. m. The band was playing in the meantime and with some difficulty it was that the opening call could be heard. Finally, however, the noise was quieted for a short time and Sergeant-at-Arms Stone with assistants cleared the aisle.

The moment the roll was read Governor Hadley of Missouri, the Roosevelt floor leader, was called on for a speech.

"Mr. Chairman," he called out, "I rise to a question of information."

The governor then made his way to the platform amid applause.

James E. Watson, the Indiana Taft floor leader, followed him. In the meantime W. J. Barnes, Jr., of New York, was on the stand.

"I will make it a point of order," he shouted, but was not recognized.

Mr. Hadley then stated his question which attacked the action of the present roll of delegates by which the Roosevelt forces are out of the temporary roll of the national committee.

"I rise to inquire whether the national committee has framed for the convention a proper temporary roll," asked Governor Hadley.

Then J. E. Watson, the Taft floor leader intervened and said:

"Mr. Chairman, I make it a point of order that the question is not held before this convention unless it has been recognized."

Both Hadley and Roosevelt held the chair. They stood on each side of the chairman's table facing each other.

"I rise to a question of information," answered Governor Hadley preliminary to making the question. "Until I have had that information there is nothing to make the point of order against. I still have the recognition of the chairman."

Representative Gaynes of Missouri was escorted to the table by the Taft forces. Then Governor Hadley took the table and began his argument.

Chairman Roosevelt had called it a point of order against the roll to be taken.

"Instead of following the illustrious example of our distinguished forefathers and having a full debate on all questions of order, the present chairman has asked only for the brief statement from each side."

Director McKinley was greeted with applause.

"I assert that the question of Hadley be allowed. The national committee are the representative party of the absolute power for the temporary roll of this convention which can be only judged by a report from a committee of this convention for whether this convention itself is to any who is to be seated."

"I say it is the power of twenty-seven men to say who shall sit at this convention arbitrarily and with the appeal of ten we have raised the whole of our representative government to this country."

The action of the national committee was then attacked.

"We know but one government in this country," said Mr. Hadley, "Government by political parties. If a political convention can be controlled by a corporation or man or a party

EAGLES ARRIVE TODAY TO ATTEND THE CONVENTION

ADVANCE HOST OF THE VARIOUS STATE AERIES ON HAND FOR THE OPENING SESSION AT ONE THIS AFTERNOON.

RACE AT FAIR GROUNDS

Mass Meeting With Formal Reception of the Delegates by Prominent Citizens This Evening at Myers Theatre.

Janesville is the meeting place of Wisconsin Eagles and every train brings in its share of delegates and enthusiastic members of the order who have come for the three days convention and fun that always is an important part of a gathering of the "Birds" at their yearly migrations from their own aeries.

Headquarters are located at the Myers Hotel and with the Eagles' Hall adjacent, it is the center of activity. Early "Birds" arrived last Halse and Walter Carle, who wore long white dusters with brilliant red lapels, and silk hats. They, with the Bower City band, marched to the depot and escorted the delegates from the stations to the convention hall. After registration the delegates were assigned to quarters by the quarters committee.

The convention opened at one o'clock this afternoon with a meeting of the delegates in Eagles' hall. The business transacted was merely of a routine nature, the making of a constitution and by-laws committee, of the resolutions committee and the committee on credentials. The committee on credentials inspected the credentials of the various delegates to report on their findings later.

The greater part of the afternoon, however, was spent in the entertainment of the visitors at the Janesville Driving park, where a program of sports was carried out, with a concert by the Bower City band. Two aeroplane flights were made by Nels Nelson with his biplane, who started from the grounds at half past two, and at half past four o'clock.

republican convention you cannot see night and by noon today the delegates came orderly procedure. Gentlemen, roll was well filled with many could not applaud me. Listen to me," he said Watson.

Mr. Hadley then referred to Governor Hadley's statement that Senator Root in the convention of 1880 had led the convention pass on the question of organization. "But that cannot be."

Senator Root was chairman of the convention, not of the national committee.

One of the Taft delegates shouted: "What is the relation of the national committee to the national convention?"

"Robbery!" came from the gallery.

"The republican national committee since 1880," continued Watson, "have had a temporary roll call. Chairman Roosevelt is not here to be your chairman; he is simply the presiding officer for the time being. He may only resolve the motions."

"I nominate Elihu Root as temporary chairman," was met with applause from the Taft delegation and jeers from the Roosevelt side. Mr. Watson said that Chairman Roosevelt's only duty in presenting the name of Root was to offer any other nomination that might be made.

"When the convention took the stand it could nominate its own chairman according to custom."

"If Governor Hadley's motion should prevail, where are we?" added Watson. "We are right!" shouted a delegate. After this Governor Hadley's motion was ruled out of order.

J. E. Wood, delegate at large from New York, seconded Elihu Root as temporary chairman and was seconded.

When the speaker turned his gaze to the floor, Henry P. Cochems of Wisconsin jumped to his feet.

"Are nominations in order?" he shouted. "They are," said Chairman Roosevelt.

Mr. Cochems was boosted to the platform and placed a nomination for Governor Francis McGovern of Wisconsin—as a delegate from Wisconsin—as a La Follette delegate instructed to remain with him throughout the convention for president, as a representative of the progressive republicans whose republican sentiments are unquestioned and whose faith is in the right."

W. S. Lander of North Dakota jumped up and shouted, "I second the motion of the nomination of Governor McGovern as temporary chairman."

Governor Johnson of California and Flynn of Pennsylvania also seconded the nomination of McGovern.

Up to 2:30 the convention had not organized.

A bitter speech by Francis J. Heney, attacking by name national committees took up the time for about ten minutes, and a scene of confusion with cheers, hisses and cut calls which occupied several minutes. Heney stood waiting.

"I have as much time as you have. You are going to hear me if it takes all summer."

AWARDS NO DAMAGES IN CONNECTIONS CASE

State Railway Commission Declares It Cannot Reimburse Passengers Who Miss Connections.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., June 18.—The state railroad commission cannot order common carriers to reimburse passengers who miss connections at junction points. This was decided in an order issued today in a case brought by Alfred C. Burritt, a deputy nursery and orchard inspector for the University of Wisconsin, against the Illinois Central railroad. He missed connections at Dodgeville because the Illinois Central train from Freeport was several hours late. He brought suit for $2.49, the loss he alleged was sustained by the agricultural college on account of his late arrival in Madison. The railroad commission says the road's service has since been improved to overcome the petitioner's objections and that the commission has no authority to compel reparation for expense incurred in failing to make connections. The complaint is dismissed.
The railroad commission today ordered that the Wisconsin and Northern railroad company in its plans from Western Riding to Antigo and from Shawano to Menasha to cross the tracks of the Chicago and North Western railroad at Appleton by an overhead structure, and also ordered overhead construction at Newberry street and Walter avenue in the city of Appleton.

California Farmer Conceals Secret For Six Years—Bird Bore Brass Tag With Explorer's Name.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Sacramento, Cal., June 18.—"North Pole, July 1, 1906, Major Andre." Was this message, which was tagged to the foot of a goose captured by a northern California farmer on July 24, 1906, a message from the dead telling of the first successful conquest of the frozen north written by the leader of the ill-fated polar expedition, which left Dane's Island, northwest Spitzbergen, in the balloon Corpen, on July 11, 1897?

For fifteen years the civilized world has waited in vain for news of the Andre party.
On the morning of July 24, 1906, a large goose, unlike any species ever seen in California, fell exhausted into the chicken yard of H. M. Thomas, a farmer residing near Montague, Siskiyou county. Thomas discovered a small nickel tag attached to one of its legs, tied securely by a strand of copper wire. Roughly but legibly chiseled into the face of the tag was the announcement of the pole's discovery on July 1, 1906.
For nearly six years Thomas kept the secret to himself. Whether it was because he doubted if the tale would be received with credence by the outside world, or with a passive indifference to his discovery, is not known.
The goose remains on the little farm which has now passed into other hands and the tag is in the possession of Thomas, who has removed to San Mateo county.

The Washington club of the American League certainly is furnishing the surprise of the season in baseball. A double surprise in fact. The first is that they could ever get so high as they are now; the second is, that having got there they seem to accept the whole thing as a matter of course. Gorman Schaefer says the Grifflites feel perfectly at home in their captive balloon.

When we attended school back in the little red schoolhouse the busy little bee was constantly held up before us as an example in industry which we would do well to follow. But in those days Ad Wolgast was a youngster himself, and hadn't started in to make said bee look like a decidedly back number. Ad has the bee backed off the board this summer and pandling for breath. At the little red schoolhouse the children will be required to repeat each morning from now on these words: "How doth the little Ad Wolgast improve the shining hours." If you doubt us, just glance at Wolgast's ring program for the summer. Here it is:

July 4—Ad Wolgast vs. Joe Rivers, 20 rounds, at Vernon, Cal.
July 16—Ad Wolgast vs. Jack Britton, 10 rounds, at New York city.
July 27—Ad Wolgast vs. Willie Ritchie, 20 rounds, at Vernon, Cal.
August 17—Ad Wolgast vs. Harlan Tommy Murphy, 20 rounds, at Vernon.
September 2—Ad Wolgast vs. Joe Rivers, 20 rounds, at Vernon.
September 27—Ad Wolgast vs. Ray Temple, 10 rounds, at San Francisco.

wages which the bee considers reasonable. Ad never would work for the sonable. His idea of improving a shining hour is to make it yield him about $5,000. A conservative estimate of the financial returns to the champion for the five scheduled battles, outside of the picture revenues, places the figure at $70,000.

The referee in the Flynn-Johnson fight, to be staged at Las Vegas on July 4, will be either Jack Welch, of San Francisco; Ed W. Smith, of Chicago; Ed Cochran, of Kansas City, or Mark Levy, of Albuquerque. Johnson and Flynn have agreed that any one of the four will be acceptable.

Surprising the lack of interest in the Jack Johnson-Jim Flynn fight. As it looks now, neither one of the fighters will get enough out of the fight to make John D. Rockefeller jealous. The public evidently has made up its mind that the contest won't be very interesting.

Football prospects at the University of Michigan are said to be the brightest in years. At the present time it is almost certain there will be eight "M" men back for the first practice next fall. This leaves but three vacancies on the eleven, and the woods about Ann Arbor are swarming with huckles who can easily fill them.

Jim Jeffries has been asked to be the third man in the ring when Ad Wolgast and Joe Rivers fight, on July 4.

FINE BOXING CARD HAS BEEN ARRANGED

Four Fast Bouts Scheduled for Tomorrow Night Will Be a Big Attraction

With Kid Lopper of Milwaukee, matched against Kid Do Muma, the Belvedere favorite, the card for the boxing bouts at the auditorium tomorrow night has been satisfactorily completed. The committee in charge have secured some of the best talent in this region and fans are counting on some interesting mixing. Fred Andrews of Milwaukee, who has been seen in Janesville once before this season, are matched for an eight-round go, and Charles Searing and Jack Tremblie will have a bout of the same number of rounds at 133 pounds. Considerable interest is shown in the preliminary bout between Young Cox of Janesville and Kid Cross of Beloit who will weigh in at 121 pounds. One of the largest crowds of the season is expected tomorrow night and arrangements are being made to accommodate as many as possible.

AEROPLANE FLIGHTS ATTRACT INTEREST

Aviator Nelson Has Machine Ready For First Flight Today—Would-be Passengers Struggle for Ride.

Aviator Neil Nelson who arrived here yesterday for his flights in the Mills biplane, had his machine in readiness this morning for the first flights today starting from the fair grounds. Nelson will give two flights each day of the Eagles' convention. There are a large number of amateurs and would-be aviators in the city who are anxious to take a flight with the Swedish flyer and there will be some rivalry to see who will be the first favored. Mail carrying by aeroplane, a honey-moon trip in the air for a daring young couple, and some fancy exhibitions of the art of flying, are included in the program of the flights. The start and finish will be at the fair grounds and the course will be a circle over the city, weather conditions being favorable. Large crowds will be attracted to the fair grounds to see how the start is made and how the machine alights.

Duel That Never Came Off. Humphrey Howarth, a surgeon famous in the post Rogers' day, appeared on the field arrayed only in nature's garb. "What does this mean?" asked his challenger, amazed. "I know," was Howarth's reply, "If any clothing is carried into the body by a gunshot wound, festering ensues. Therefore I have met you thus." The duel was declared off.

SONHAG PICKED TO WIN AT STOCKHOLM

George V. Sonhag, of the Irish-American Athletic club of New York, is expected to win some points for Uncle Sam in the 10,000-metre race at Stockholm. He may not get first, as some other fast Americans, including W. J. Keatner, Al Ryan and Louis J. Scott, will compete in this event.

Women in Deadly Duel.

There was fought in Tennessee not long ago a duel between women. They met after church service, sitting upon each other with knives. Friends attempted to part them. With leveled revolver, the man over whom they had quarreled, ordered that the fight be to a finish. Soon one of the women lay dead and the other was badly wounded.

HE COULD VAULT OVER THE MOON

H. A. Gardner, of Yale, is a man who may break a world's record any day. He is a pole vaulter and has already cleared the bar at 13 feet 1 inch. His record has been beaten by but one man, Marc J. Wright of the Olympic team, whose record is 13 feet 2 1/4 inches.

PLATT ADAMS OF NEW YORK IS ONE OF AMERICA'S BEST ALL AROUND ATHLETES

One of the American athletes who will give a good account of himself at the Olympic games in Stockholm is Platt Adams of the New York Athletic club. He is especially strong with the discus and in the standing broad and high jumps. In the recent tryouts at the Harvard stadium, Platt Adams won first in the standing broad jump, making a record of 10 feet 8 inches. He won second in the standing high jump, his brother, Ron Adams, won a second and a first, respectively, in these two events.

Jim Flynn is hard at work in Las Vegas, N. Tommy Ryan, the former middleweight champion who is training Flynn wants him to go into the ring weighing less than 150 pounds. He declares that it is hard for Flynn to think of meeting Jack Johnson at 200 pounds, but must get down much lower, so that he will have all possible speed to pit against the strength of the negro champion.

OMENS OF DEFEAT.

Elbert Hubbard, of Roycroft fame, gives his impressions of the political outlook in a characteristic letter sent out from Chicago yesterday. The campaign of vilification waged by the republican party, means defeat, in his judgment. He says:

"Lions, tigers, coyotes, double distilled thievery, hand-picked brigands, hold-ups, larceny, larceny, larceny. These are the words of defeat, not the exultant cry of success. It is like that untranslatable French word sung by the last of the old guard at Waterloo when his ammunition was exhausted.

"When overcome by the enemy there is always one thing which, with our last breath, we can tell the enemy to do.

"If this Chicago fight is won by Taft, it will be because the colored troops fought nobly—and stuck. They hold the balance of power.

"In the lobby of the Coliseum you see them by the dozen, colored gentlemen, well fed, well upholstered, well dressed, each evidently with all the money he needs, even if not all he wants.

"In the meantime all the white folks around the Coliseum howl and say: 'Excuse me!'

"The colored race have shown their ability to stick on the field of battle—why should not they be here? A House Divided.

"It is well to remember that this shout of 'Har, Har, Har, Har' is not the language used by men of one political party against those of another.

"It is the language of colleagues, men who should be working together for a common end and a common purpose. What was it Lincoln quoted about a house divided against itself?

"Col. Roosevelt spoke for just five minutes Saturday afternoon, and in the course of his remarks he used the word 'thievery, thievery and thievery' just seventeen times and always the words were applied to men in his own party.

"When Robert Ingersoll, standing on the steps of the sub-treasury in New York, referred to the democratic party as having just two motives in life, grand and petty larceny, some people thought the talk was severe.

"But please remember that Col. Ingersoll was a republican and he was talking about a party with which he had no sympathy.

No Talk of Compromise.
"One hears no talk in Chicago about a compromise candidate. There is no mention of a dark horse. There are only two candidates before the convention.

with their round robin that Theodore Roosevelt should be 'our candidate.' And that particular round robin, we have now reason to believe, was initiated by Theodore Roosevelt himself, and presented to the governors for their obliging signatures.

Governors See Defeat Impending.
"And now, at least five of these governors are in Chicago and again signing a round robin, this time giving a reason for a defeat, or a bolt, or both—for the terms are synonymous.

"The governors are losers, and they are not cheerful losers, either. For even if Roosevelt should get this nomination, he has stirred up so much hate that a big defection of republican voters would follow.

"If the Taft forces put their candidate in, and it looks as if they would, they will not forgive Theodore Roosevelt."

The tirade of abuse, heaped upon the republican national committee by Colonel Roosevelt, in his audacious speech last night, while cheered to the echo, was a and commentary on the man who is forced to resort to such desperate measures in promoting personal ambition. His attack on the committee is an attack on the party which created it, and this is the party which has honored the man who now traduces it.

"God's patient poor and the down-trodden people" comprise a large audience, as compared to the little group of "special interests." And yet what would the late colonel do for funds to finance his campaign without the "Harvester Trust" and a few combinations of this class. Playing on the prejudices of the people is a part of the political game. It won in Wisconsin, and may win in the larger field.

The platform committee of the various candidates for president, are vying with each other in efforts to outdo the most radical reforms. The La Follette production will include all the frills which have made Wisconsin famous, and several new ones of more recent discovery. The party platform is a great document, in advance of a campaign, but seldom very alarming after election. That's why Wisconsin elections are run without a platform.

J. Bruce Ismay, of Titanic disaster fame, has discovered that his own countrymen are not so lenient as the Americans. The English court, which is now dealing with him, claims that he was more than a passenger, and that Captain Smith recognized him as the first officer in command, by handing him the danger signals sent in from other ships. The court also brands him as a coward.

Colonel Wm. J. Bryan is doing re- portorial work for the Chicago Tribune this week, and is finding no trouble in getting all sorts of "scops" in the way of news. Some one suggested a Roosevelt-Bryan ticket, but the Nebraska statesman was too busy to be bothered by a doubtful compliment. He is said to have designs on the Baltimore convention which may land him at the head of a ticket of his own.

Heart to Heart Talks.

WAIT FOR THE CUE.
A young St. Louis girl wrote a brief note, closed her windows and turned on the gas. The note read:
I am sick and tired and out of money. There is no hope. Goodbye!

Poor lassie! She thought self destruction was the door of escape from her troubles. But was it? If you should be miserable in Illinois would it make you happy merely by moving over into Indiana?

Death is only a change of venue. "Which way I turn is hell," said Milton's Satan. "Myself am hell." That's it. You carry your misery in your soul. The mere shifting of the scene will not suffice.

What a pity some one could not have said to the poor child—
"Now, my dear, you may be badly off, but thousands are in a worse state than you. Many have passed through your agony of mind and are happy now.

"The clouds will brighten. Wait.
"If you are hungry there are places like the Salvation Army or the Associated Charities, where they will feed you until you can look around. Nay, they will put a roof over your head until such time you can find fresh courage.

"If you are sick there are free dispensaries and clinics and hospitals, which you may employ without loss of your self respect. You are just worn of body and faint of spirit. Take a breath or two and make a new start. Do nothing rash.

"Wait a bit. Rest."
But, alas, the girl was alone, driven to bay, desperate! In her stress of hopelessness it seemed good to destroy her young body in order to ease her mind.

And pity 'tis she is only one of thousands such.
"Suicide is confession."

It is as if an actor, unwilling to wait for the prompter's word, should rush from behind the scenes and plunge into the limelight of the stage and shout his lines—to the amusement of the audience.

How explain his presence there?
And what must be his confusion and embarrassment? Would he not be blazed from the stage?

How much better to wait until the caller gives the cue for the part before going on!

Is it not time enough to go when one is called, trembling and hesitant, to say one's lines?

"The Taft people are not talking so much, but their jaws are set firm and their intentions are, most positively, that Theodore Roosevelt shall not be nominated.

"If Theodore Roosevelt had kept out of this game, President Taft would have been renominated without a doubt, and he would have stood a good chance of being elected.

"Then came the eight governors,

Of a golden opportunity—Sitting next to a man with a diamond scarf pin during a dark scene in the theater.

Of a steady job—Trying to save up enough extra coupons to get a 25 cent pipe.

Of nothing to read—The ordinary 10-cent magazine.

Of a stitch in time—Leaving the house locked up just before the man arrives to read the gas meter.

Of a miracle—Leaving a life insurance agent talk about anything else.

Of a sad coincidence—Two back suspender buttons leaving at the same instant.

Of a left-handed compliment—Letter from publishing house praising story but rejecting it.

CHICAGO HOTELS CROWDED WITH VISITORS FOR THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

(By Associated Press.)

Chicago, Ill., June 18.—The num- ber of visitors to Chicago for the con- vention including delegates and al- ternates was estimated last night to be well above 150,000.

Every hotel in the downtown dis- trict was crowded to its capacity and late crowds were directed to outlying hostels.

Early today with not more than ten exceptions the full list of delegates and alternates had been accounted for. The various state delegations and accompanying friends crowded the hotel corridors and street corners until long after midnight.

Taxis, automobiles and busses carried dozens from the depots after each arriving train. Cafes and res- taurants were outfitted with addi- tional seating room and working force prepared to feed all comers.

Everywhere there was an air of ex- pectancy over the first day's proceed- ings and the general opinion prevail- ed that the stage was set for the most interesting convention of the kind within the memory of most of those who had come to attend it.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION IN SHADOW OF PIKE'S PEAK.

Colorado Springs, Colo., June 18.— Many noted Bible and Sunday School workers from different parts of the country are in attendance at the Thirty-second annual State Sunday School Convention which opened here today in the shadow of Pike's Peak for a session scheduled to extend over three days. Among the features of the program are a Rural School Conference, a Superintendent's and Pastors' Supper Conference, an Elementary Workers' Conference, and International Training Schools for men and women.

Vermont Democratic Convention. Montpelier, Vt., June 18.—Demo- crats of Vermont assembled here to- day to select delegates at large and district delegates to the national con- vention and to nominate a state ticket to be voted for at the election next fall. The indications are that the delegates to Baltimore will be un- instructed.

The Big Sale Goes Merrily On:

The first day was certainly a success, judged from the ex- pression of delight and the crowded store. People have come to know that we never disappoint—that we do all we say we do. We are certain you never saw better values nor prettier garments.

People like to visit the Big Store be- cause it is always bright and busy; never dull; never listless or other than thoroughly attrac- tive.

"How did the bird know that?"
A long head seldom goes with a long face—long heads get our values!

Away with books and pencils! Vacation days are here! Days of sunshine and outdoor life—that means sunburn.

MAKE HAULING COUNT FOR DOUBLE RESULT

While Dirt Was Hauled to Rake Track Grade Was Prepared for Walk on Racine Street.

Double results from one operation are being secured by the city council as a substantial saving and increased benefit to the city. The teams which have been hauling gravel for the elevation of the sidewalk to the level of the curb, took their material from the Denning property on Racine street, between Forest Park Boulevard and Rockwell avenue, this making it possible to lay a badly needed sidewalk. The mistake was made in grading this street of grading up to the curb line instead of lay a walk along the Denning lots so much material would have been removed that the work was never undertaken. Pedestrians were forced to walk in the grade for half a block. Now that a street has been prepared the council will promptly order a sidewalk laid there.

The Northwestern siding, where it intersects the approach to the Racine street bridge, has been raised to within a few inches of the floor of the bridge, but considerable more filling will be necessary on either side of this point to make the grade satisfactory. From twelve to sixteen men have been at work bulldozing and dumping gravel under the ties. The ballast is now being hauled from Wells street.

From observations taken and accounts kept since the work began, the expense will approximate the estimate of the city, which was not more than a thousand dollars. The first figure submitted by the railway was $2,700, it being understood that their men were to do all the work.

SPECIAL POLICEMEN TO CARE FOR CROWDS

Five Additional Officers Have Been Appointed by Chief of Police George Appleby.

Five special policemen have been appointed by Chief of Police George Appleby to serve during the regular convention and assist the regular officers in keeping order among the large crowds which are expected. More will be named if necessary requires. Those who have been named are J. P. Heider, from the Thoroughbred box factory, and Main streets; Michael Foran, from the Janesville Machine works, assigned to the depot; L. U. Fisher, ex-sheriff, to patrol with carriage; Joseph Murray of the Wisconsin Telephone Company, mounted policeman; and E. P. Thompson, teamster, to the night shift.

COUNCIL MAY PERMIT PARK BALL PLAYING

Ordinance May Be Repealed—Ten Boys in Court For Playing in Fourth Ward Park Yesterday.

Permission to play ball in the Fourth ward park may be granted to the boys of the city through the Council repealing the ordinance that now prohibits it. The question was again brought up this morning when ten boys who were driven out of the park by Chief of Police Appleby yesterday afternoon, appeared in court and were given a reprimand by Judge Pifford. For three weeks or more the boys have not played ball there, but yesterday a number returned and complaint was made to the Chief of Police by a woman living near the park. He went down and ordered them away, and after securing the names of ten, had them promise to appear before the Judge this morning. This promise they faithfully kept. No written complaint was made against them.

Judge Pifford told the boys that as long as the ordinance was in force they should play no more ball in the park and that a second warning would result in their being sent to the reformatory. The reason why ball playing in the park had been prohibited was that the boys were too noisy, used bad language to one another, and sometimes fought among themselves. If they simply had played ball no one would complain. If the ordinance should be repealed if the boys refrain from profane language and unnecessary noise, and also, that they confine their playing to the diamond in the southeast corner.

Mayor Fathers, who was present, also addressed the boys, and said that if the park was opened to them it would be under the conditions that the Judge had outlined. Their conduct would determine their success and permanence of that privilege, and it was up to them to govern themselves accordingly.

NARROWLY ESCAPES DROWNING IN RAPIDS BELOW THE DAM.

David Allison, Ten Years Old, Falls in at Power House and is Rescued While Clinging to Pile.

David Allison, the ten year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Allison, narrowly escaped being drawn over the upper dam and drowning in the rapids below yesterday afternoon. He fell into the river while attempting to pull out an apparently loose board from the pier near the power house.

Members of the crew at work on the Fourth avenue bridge saw the lad's dangerous plight, and their cries of alarm brought Almon W. Woodworth of Algonquin Carpenter's shop, Young Allison meanwhile had seen the lad and ran the farthest gate and grasped it as firmly as he could. It was with considerable difficulty that Mr. Woodworth reached him, and with the assistance of Mr. Carpenter drew him up on the pier. Had the water been as high as it was a few weeks ago the current would probably have carried Allison to his death.

Thursday June 20, is memorial day for the W. R. C. All members and friends are requested to take the two o'clock car Thursday afternoon. They will decorate the graves of their deceased members. Services will be held in the waiting room.

BETTERS RELUCTANT TO PUT UP MONEY

Wall Street Betting Ring Has Offered But Few Bets at Any Odds Whatsoever on Outcome of Chicago Convention.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

New York, June 18.—The leaders of the betting fraternity down in the Wall street district are offering odds of 3 to 1 that neither Taft nor Roosevelt will be nominated at the Chicago convention. In the same quarters odds of 3 to 1 were quoted that either the colored or Mr. Taft will receive the nomination. Little money is known to have been put up at any odds whatever and Wall street appeared to be much in the dark.

The following figures were quoted by a former betting commissioner who has been active in the financial district since the situation at Chicago became so confused:

One thousand dollars to $500 that Taft will not be re-nominated; $700 to $1,000 that Roosevelt will be nominated; $100 to $500 that neither will be nominated.

These odds, it was said, represented only a portion of the Wall street sentiment.

Bettors looked upon the chances of either Mr. Taft or the colored as follows: Two and one-half to one against both of them.

The feature of speculation regarding the democratic candidates was the election of William J. Bryan. The odds were four to one against his nomination, whereas a week ago they were 10 to 1 against him.

CONVENTION POLICEMEN GIVEN STRICT ORDERS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Chicago, June 18.—A detail of five hundred policemen was given final instructions by Assistant Chief of Police Schoutler last night regarding their duties for the convention.

Among other things the men were told:

"You shall allow no one to pass your lines or to enter the Coliseum unless he has the official ticket. No member of the department must attempt to obtain admission for his friends or relatives unless they have tickets and no one is to enter the hall unless you are detailed to do so."

"I want to impress upon you that no one is allowed to smoke in this building or to enter carrying a lighted cigar, pipe, or cigarette."

"Detectives from Chicago and other cities were assigned to go through the crowds in search for pickpockets. Dozens of known thieves are already locked up in city police stations and the number is hourly being added to by the force of one hundred or more plain clothes men."

SENSIBLE WOMEN KNOW FOUNDATION OF HEALTH

As health talks to women become more general, both in the newspapers and on the platform, the mass of women are beginning to realize what the more cultivated have always known, that good health cannot be found in a powder box. The externals of health may be obtained in that way, but the basis of health lies deeper and yet is just as easily obtained.

The most important thing that a woman can do for herself, and about which she is often most neglectful is to watch the condition of her stomach and bowels. The weary eyes, the bad breath, the frequent headaches, the pimples, the general air of lassitude is nine times out of ten the result of constipation or indigestion, or both. Many simple remedies can be obtained, but the best in the estimation of most women is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is mild, pleasant to the taste and exactly suited to her needs. It is far superior to salts, cathartics,

Abbreviated Costume: The new governors and small charge were jogging along, one of the popular drives in the pony cart when they met several members of an athletic club, clad in very much abbreviated running togs, out for a cross-country jaunt. "Oh, see those boys," cried the little girl, "wink at something and nosing else!"—Judge.

In These Days No Merchant Can Be Successful Unless He Represents YOU.

By J. R. HAMILTON.
Former Advertising Manager
Wanamaker's, Philadelphia.

Fifty years ago every store had a "barker" just as every sideshow has now. He was not so loud, but he was equally insistent. He stood on the sidewalk in front of his store and urged you to come in.

When you entered, he rang a bell. "You were surrounded by highwaymen and there immediately began a system of brigandage which was not even surpassed by hold-up men on lonely roads."

The first business of these so-called salesmen was to find out how much money you had. Every time you resorted to a bank, you to open your wallet or your purse. The second object was to get as much of that money as possible and his value to his concern was measured entirely by your loss.

This is not romance; it is history. Not the worst stores, but many of the best stores did it. The only price on an article was the highest price you would pay.

The law of the Caveat Emptor (let the buyer beware) was the Commercial Law of the land. It was understood that you and the merchant were commercial enemies and that you were his legitimate prey.

Such things as a definite price or the returnability of merchandise or a guarantee of good faith would have been considered foolhardy.

Now, out of all this chicanery, this cross-roads, bartering, this world-old hostility of buyer and seller, have come to clean, wholesome, trustworthy institutions of the present day.

And the one great factor that has brought this change about is Advertising. And the reason for this is that a man is naturally far more careful of what he writes than of what he merely says.

Today you walk into a store with as much confidence as you would enter your own home. You feel that every possible safeguard is thrown about you for your protection. The merchant, where he once was your commercial enemy, has become your business representative. Your pleasure is his command. He will do anything within reason to meet your smallest request. Even the manufacturers and big distributors have caught this feeling that they must represent you, or you will not patronize them.

This is the great thing that Advertising has done for trade. And the peculiar part of it is that you feel this safety, this reliability, this surety of fair play only toward those who advertise.

That is why the advertising columns of this paper should mean so much to you. That is why you should make this advertising a part of your daily news.

That is why you should begin to read it today, and continue to read it every day for everything you buy.

OPPOSING FORCES
STAND FIRM TODAY
FOR BITTER FIGHT

Personal Animosity Is Intense as Critical Struggle Begins in Chicago—Colonel Proposes Plan to Reduce Taft Majority.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
 Chicago, June 18.—With the Taft and Roosevelt forces gathered at the Coliseum today for the opening of the fifteenth republican national convention with battle lines on both sides, apparently holding firm and with leaders and delegates to preside at the session which it is said will mark an epoch in American politics, rarely have the principles in a national convention not under greater stress or with more bitterness of personal feeling than that which is prevalent today.

The atmosphere is electric with bitterness and personal animosity. Those unable to obtain seats at the convention thronged the hotel lobbies or roomed in the vicinity of the coliseum with the idea that a sensation of some sort would develop in the big hall at any moment. Many veterans said it was the worst crush of humanity in their convention experience.

Taft Men Confident.
 President Taft's managers concluded their plans for the fight on the floor of the convention on the assumption that the temporary roll call as prepared by the national committee would show a Taft majority by a small margin. Also, they assumed that the temporary roll call of the committee would become the temporary roll of the convention.

Colonel Roosevelt and his advisors, evidently familiar with the Taft plans, evolved an eleventh hour scheme for dueling the small Taft majority, by means of an arrangement to eliminate from the roll on the temporary organization those votes which are contested by Colonel Roosevelt. This scheme of procedure, furthered by the Illinois delegation and ratified by a number of Roosevelt delegates, this morning was embodied in the following resolution:

"Resolved that no election of temporary or other officers of this convention or resolution or other proceedings shall be taken as the act of this convention or have any effect unless it received on roll call the affirmative vote of 540 delegates whose seats are uncontested and this resolution shall govern and be in force during the temporary organization of this convention and until the permanent organization thereof shall have been effected."

"HAT IN RING" CARRIED INTO CONVENTION HALL

"HOW LONG WILL AMERICANS EAT MEAT FOREIGNERS CONDEMN?" ASKS REFORMER

Rev. Caroline Bartlett Crane and Representative John W. Nelson.

Rev. Caroline Bartlett Crane, the noted reformer and divine of Kalamazoo, Mich., is putting up a big fight against the government's present methods of meat inspection. She declares they are lax, and says Americans must eat meat, the importation of which is forbidden by Germany and England. She declares that meats from which diseased portions have been cut, rejected by foreign countries, are sold through home markets.

Mrs. Crane recently went before the house committee on agriculture and spoke in favor of the passage of a resolution introduced by Representative Nelson, of Wisconsin, calling for an investigation of the government's methods of inspection.

Cuban Rebel Leader Says Government Troops Used Cruelty to Neutral Negroes.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
 Santiago, Cuba, June 18.—Rosa E. Holiday U. S., consul here in receipt today of a letter from General Estomex, one of the rebel leaders protesting in the name of humanity against the conduct of the government troops. He says that at Human Belas, a suburb of El Caney four miles north of Santiago, the government troops stole 120 horses of negroes who were totally unconcerned in the revolution. At the same place they killed the father and two of his children both under ten and mutilated a number of young girls. General Estomex requested the U. S. to send a representative to the scene of military operation stating that he could give abundant proof of his charges against the government troops.

The condition is becoming general for intervention.

DINNER STORIES

Mrs. Clancy had twin boys, who looked so very much alike that people who knew the family often wondered how their parents told them apart.

Some friends were one day admiring the boys, who were then two years old.

"But Mrs. Clancy," said one, "don't see how you can tell them apart."

"Aye," answered that lady proudly, "that's easy. I just whip Paddy, and if he cries it's Dennis."

Even the bright spring sunshine failed to cheer the man in the motor car. He sat all huddled up in his heavy driving coat.

A friend passed, "Hallo, Johnson!" he said, "What's up? How long have you been here?" "Oh, about four hours!" said the motorist miserably.

"What's the trouble—tire burst?" The motorist shook his head.

"Engine gone wrong? Short of gasoline? If so I can—"

"Thanks, old man. She's running fine and the tank's full."

"Then what the dickens is the matter?"

"Oh, nothing," mourned the motorist. "I'm only waiting for my wife. She's been kissing her sister's new baby ever since ten in that house there. Perhaps she'll be finished presently, then we can go home to dinner. I'm hungry as a wolf!"

Wilton Lackaye at a recent dinner at the Lamba was rather bored by a pompous layman who ventured in that company of wits to make a speech that was dull and interminable, but perfectly self-possession, because of the sheer egotism of the speaker.

When he got through, Lackaye said he would like to tell a story of which he had been reminded by the last speaker. Said he: "There were two editors of rival papers out in a little town in Illinois and they spent most of their time writing mean squibs about each other. Unfortunately for one of them, he one day purchased a mule for his farm, just out of town, whereupon the rival newspaper printed the fact of the purchase as a news item and commented on it as 'An extraordinary case of self-possession!'

Our Message to You Today Is About Haying Tools

How about that old mower. You know you expected to discard it last year. Come in and let us show you the good points of the DEERING NEW IDEAL VERTICAL LIFT MOWER

It is designed to work on rough, stoney or stumpy ground. It does the work surely and effectively where a straight lift machine would be handicapped by unusual conditions and hampered by the straight lift construction. When an obstruction is encountered the cutter bar can be quickly raised by the powerful vertical lift device and dropped down again when the stump or stone has been passed. The operator can thus drive in a straight line provided the clears the obstruction with the wheel. With a straight lift mower it would be necessary to make a detour as the cutter bar could not be raised high enough to clear a high stump.

The New Ideal vertical lift mower is a combined push and draw cut machine. This construction holds the inner shoe firmly to the ground and overcomes any tendency of the wheels to rise from the ground when heavy cutting is encountered. This mower has improved ball and roller bearings and internal gears. The levers are all conveniently placed and everything has been done to make this the best machine of its kind on the market today.

Come in and look them over, we will make the price.

Heart and Home Problems

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been writing to a young man for three months. Just lately he has not answered my letters. I love him. Do you think he loves me? EMMY.

My dear girl, don't bank on a man loving you just because you have been writing letters to him for three months. Have his letters been more loving than yours? Has he written two or more letters to one of yours? If so, then he has been certainly interested in you. Usually, when a man stops writing to a girl it is because he doesn't want to write to her any more. Of course, he may be ill, but the chances are that he isn't. If he doesn't resume writing in a reasonable time just forget him. Mindtime do not write to him again. If he loves you he certainly will not forsake you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please print the different wedding anniversaries and greatly oblige a number of your readers?

SIX MAILED ONES.

Here they are—and any brides who see this had better cut it out, for they'll need it in the future.

First year, cotton; second year, paper; third year, leather; fifth year, wood; seventh year, woolen; tenth year, tin; twelfth year, linen; fifteenth year, crystal; twentieth year, china; twenty-fifth year, silver; thirtieth year, pearl; fortieth year, ruby; fiftieth year, golden; seventy-fifth year, diamond.

dinner and supper, will soon find a place near the top of the pie list. Grate one large pineapple, add to it one and a half cups of powdered sugar, three crackers rolled and sifted, two-thirds of a cup of butter, a tablespoon of rose water and a little grated nutmeg. Bake in an open shell; cover with the stiff white of an egg and brown slightly. This may also be used as a filling for tarts.

HOUSEKEEPING AIDS.

During the last of the apple season, when the fruit becomes wilted, try treating them as we do potatoes which have lost their moisture. Let them stand for several hours in cold water. It will freshen them up wonderfully. A convenient fire starter is a tin can of ashes saturated with kerosene. It is much safer than using the oil. A teaspoonful put into the stove with a few kindlings does the work.

A mixture of talc and olive oil put on to rusty black kid gloves gives them a new look and they wear longer.

When sewing on buttons on children's clothes, if the thread is waxed well it will last much longer as it cannot become water-soaked.

Fruit cocktails make a delicious first course for a luncheon or a wedding breakfast. The combination of fruit may please the palate of the designer, the juice and sugar is all that is needed for a dressing.

A dainty and appetizing salad is prepared from tiny young lettuce, cooked until tender and served on beds with a French dressing.

Another pretty salad is simply a thick slice of rosy tomato decorated with a rose of mayonnaise piped on it, and then sprinkled with chopped parsley.

MARY ELLEN'S WAY

She Convinces Mr. Mary Ellen of the Futility of Keeping Chickens

"I THINK it would be nice to have some chickens of our own," said Mr. Mary Ellen at the breakfast table. "The eggs we got would make a hen blush. They are always high, too. Didn't you pay fifty cents a dozen last winter?"

"Mary Ellen admitted she did."

"That's outrageous. We could raise our own eggs for much less than that. And have fresh ones in the bargain. And broilers, too. Think of delicious, tender broilers!"

"Mary Ellen was not partial to keeping chickens; but she only said mildly, 'Chickens are a sort of nuisance, aren't they?'"

"Not if they are taken care of properly."

"Well, do just as you please. Fresh eggs would be nice."

That night a consignment of Rhode Island Reds arrived.

The next day the leeman left the gate open and the Rhode Island Reds streamed into the yard, as if putting foot on their native heath. "With a meditative eye, Mary Ellen watched them as they settled down industriously to the task of overhauling Mr. Mary Ellen's pet flower border. They had a grand time. They followed the trail of each worm to its beginning in the lower regions. They took dust baths. They indulged in vigorous leg exercises. When the day was done and darkness fell from the wings of night, their wings were folded contentedly over a sense of duty thoroughly performed."

"What in thunder is the matter with the flowers?" exploded Mr. Mary Ellen as he viewed the wreckage.

"The leeman left the gate open and the chickens got in," said Mary Ellen meekly. "Isn't it too bad?"

Mr. Mary Ellen stalked gloomily into the house. The next morning a sign, "Shut the Gate," adorned that feature of the domicile.

About ten o'clock, excited squawks and the furious tooting of an auto horn rose on the air; and as the car whirled on, the king of the flock, the respondent rouser, lay a mutilated wreck by the roadside.

"I'm awfully sorry, dear, but the rooster was killed today by an auto."

"Why don't you keep them up?"

"You said they were to run out."

So Mr. Mary Ellen spent the evening mending the fence around the chicken yard. "He was not an expert carpenter, and his hands looked the worse for the experience when he came in. 'Did you get any eggs today?' he asked wearily."

"No, I guess chickens have to get used to a place before they lay. The days passed, and still the eggs refused to appear."

"Maybe it doesn't agree with them to be kept up," suggested Mr. Mary Ellen. "What in thunder can you do with them. You can't let 'em run and you can't keep 'em up."

"They are a problem," said Mary Ellen sympathetically. "And it takes so much of your time to read up about chickens. It's a shame. You never get to read the magazine or new books or anything any more. That last book I got was a corker, just the kind you like."

Mr. Mary Ellen sighed. A few days later he said, "Those chickens are scratching themselves awful."

"Maybe they ought to be greased."

"Greased?"

"Yes, I have heard that when chickens get to scratching themselves, you have to catch them and grease them about the head and the wings and such places. It's a mess to do it."

"Not for mine," said Mr. Mary Ellen. "I'm no hen lubricator."

"But dear, they won't be healthy if you don't grease them."

"Then they can pine away and die, dear."

"It is a shame for you to have to work so hard. I wish you did not have them. You are just wearing yourself out over those chickens. And they don't lay either. They are not worth it."

The next day somebody called and said Mr. Mary Ellen had sold him the chickens. Mary Ellen with a twinkle in her eye watched them depart.

"Yes, I did work hard," said Mr. Mary Ellen that night after supper. "But I didn't mind that. If it had paid it would have been all right. But there is no sense in going on with a thing that does not pay."

"Not a bit," said Mr. Mary Ellen blithely. "Only not everybody has the sense you have to see it."

The Evening Chat-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

GIVING THINGS A REST.

TO LAST as long as possible and remain in the most efficient state, human beings must have a certain amount of rest and change. That is a truism. But did it ever occur to you that inanimate objects also seem to profit by an occasional rest?

A few months ago, a clock which we had had a great many years, suddenly stopped in the middle of the week, and finally rested all efforts to start it. "It needs cleaning," we said, "we must send it to the clockmaker." We were very busy, however, and put off attending to this matter until last week. At that time, we were about to call on the clockmaker and ask him to come for the recalcitrant timepiece, when someone suggested, "Let's try to start it once more before we send it away." We did so, and the clock started chording off on its duties of timekeeping without a murmur or a hitch. All it needed, you see, was a rest.

Everyone knows that boots and shoes will wear just about twice as long if they are not worn steadily, but given a chance to rest a day or two every now and then, and many people say the same about clothes.

At the end of last summer, the hat which I had worn all the season seemed absolutely unsalvageable to me, and I bought my winter hat considerably earlier than I had intended to, because it did not seem to me that I could wear my faded and dilapidated summer hat even once more. But behold, when I took that hat out to the haberdash after a winter's rest, it didn't look half bad, and I actually wore it a few times.

A woman who keeps two or three expensive hats as permanent hat ornaments, declares that she is able to get a good deal more wear out of them, if she gives them a season's rest now and then. "If I used them steadily every season, they would only last three or four years," she says, "but by giving them a summer or a winter vacation now and then, I can keep them presentable for eight or nine years."

Perhaps someone will suggest in the case of the hat that the change was subjective rather than objective; in other words, that it was my eyes which prided by the rest rather than the hat. There may be something in that, but that hypothesis doesn't explain the clock, you know, nor the plumes, nor the shoes.

There have been philosophers who contended that there is a principle of life in every inanimate object. I can't quite go that far, but I do still insist that, however you explain it, in this one matter, inanimate objects are just like you and me—they sometimes need a rest.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

Edna K. Wooley

We Know He Didn't Mean It, Anyhow.

"With all my worldly goods I thee endow," is to be stricken from the Methodist marriage service, according to the action of the general conference at Minneapolis.

The expressionists had, say the pastors. Moreover, they claim, it's obsolete, being a relic of "those days" when a woman was supposed to possess nothing except what her husband gave her.

Of course it sounds bad! Women have known that for a long time. It's such a palpable hint. The man who says it always has his fingers crossed. There are innumerable wives who will vouch for that—wives who have been unable to pry off any of those worldly goods with a crowbar.

For a good many years women have been trying to "have obey" eliminated from the marriage ceremony. They didn't want to promise something they knew they couldn't and often ought not to fulfill. They know, too, that the marriage promise to obey wouldn't hold good in court, should Marie commit a crime at her John's request.

But why all these promises before witnesses, in marriage ceremony? Promises are foolish things, at best. One should be very chary about making them—especially about such promises as the future. Everybody means well when he or she marries, of course, but meaning well isn't sufficient reason for promising to do what may prove impossible to fulfill in time to come.

Congress is considering taxing incomes over $5,000 a year. This would not be hard upon a bachelor. It would only curtail a little of his luxury. But how about the man with a wife and four or five children, whose income is no larger than the bachelor's, but whose outgo is so much greater and whose expenditures so highly commendable. Could you call this encouraging a man to marry and raise citizens that will be a credit to his country?

The new bank deposit tax of 1.50 per cent in Ohio, will also work a hardship on the poor man, who has denied himself comfort and often necessities, in order that he might have a nest-egg in the savings bank for the inevitable days of sickness, or period of being "out of work," or that old age, which comes all too soon in these days of demand for young men in our industrial world.

Under the Sixth and inspection of the bank's records is permitted and none can expect to escape the tax, beginning with this year, not even though man be sick or workless and relying upon his savings account to tide him and his family over the time of stress.

It would have been kinder—certainly more just—if Ohio lawmakers had established a limit, protecting the small depositor in savings banks—the little "rainy day" fund that the workman and his wife have struggled to save.

Everyone knows that boots and shoes will wear just about twice as long if they are not worn steadily, but given a chance to rest a day or two every now and then, and many people say the same about clothes.

At the end of last summer, the hat which I had worn all the season seemed absolutely unsalvageable to me, and I bought my winter hat considerably earlier than I had intended to, because it did not seem to me that I could wear my faded and dilapidated summer hat even once more.

"PLAIN WATER AND A BRUSH" FOR TEETH.

Recently I called attention to the injurious character of many tooth powders, on account of the fact that they contain crystals of lime that gradually scour the enamel from the teeth. Now Dr. C. N. Johnson, dentist, of Chicago, says that "Plain water and a brush are all that is necessary for the proper care of the teeth. The average person uses a tooth brush too much and rubs off the enamel from the teeth." The particles of food always remaining in the teeth after a meal should be removed, and the best way to do this is to use a simple antiseptic mouth wash with a tooth brush and water.

The Facts of Soap-Making

Some of you once used soft green soap in the old country. And nearly everybody knows by reputation the famous soft green soap which is a staple—sold like sugar and flour—in Northern Europe. For the first time you can now buy this same soap in America.

Old Country GREEN SOAP

is pure vegetable oil made into soap with pure electrolytic potash. Hard cake or so-called family laundry soap is usually made from second-grade tallow, packing-house grease and caustic soda lye, and "filled" with about 60 per cent rosin and 7 per cent minerals. The minerals are very injurious to the clothes, usually leaving them hard and gray or yellow. It is almost impossible to rinse out the rosin, especially from woolens.

We've preferred to use this space merely to give you a few inside facts. You will write your own recommendations of "Old Country." Get a 2 pound tin that can today from your grocer. It packs up to 25 pounds at 10 cents the pound and less. Test it today.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

Henrietta D. Grauel

"If pineapple juice was the national beverage of the American people, we would be the healthiest nation on the globe," says the Housekeeper.

All fruit juices are wholesome but none equals the pineapple, its active digestive principle, being used by chemists to predigest beef and thus obtain a pure pineapple for the sick. It is also said to soothe the nerves and cure insomnia. This is doubtless true, because nerve trouble and sleeplessness are directly traceable to digestive derangement.

To be benefited the fruit should be well ripened, and taken raw with sugar or in combination with other fruits; cooking kills the fruit's natural ferment and robs it of its value in the dietary except as an agreeable sweet.

When using the fresh pineapples with gelatine or in cream remember that it must be cooked first or the gelatine will not harden because of the absence of pectin or jellifying matter.

Pineapples are excellent for fruit salads, the syrup is used for fruit sauces, ice-cream and less and delectable desserts and pineapple juice with marshmallow base or slices of pineapple crystallized please everyone. But just now is the time to preserve this fruit.

If you tell your fruit man you are buying the pineapples for canning he will perhaps give you the benefit of his knowledge and pick out the best kind, for there are three sorts on our market: the Florida pine, which comes from Porto Rico, too, the Hawaiian and the Southern California pine. The home grown ones are as sweet as the Hawaiian, but coarser in fiber and cook to pieces making a tasteless and unwholesome preserve, while the imported ones are fine for any purpose.

To preserve pineapples—First sterilize the jars, rubbers, cans and all utensils used in the process of canning; this is always necessary to insure the preservation of any fruit. Pare the pineapples with a silver knife and remove the eyes with the scissors made for that purpose; wash with a silver fork or a pineapple shredder. Weigh the fruit and to every pound allow three-fourths of a pound of sugar, bring quickly to the boil in a porcelain kettle, simmer fifteen minutes, can and seal.

If the pineapple is wanted sliced for canning cook the slices, which should be almost half an inch thick, in a little boiling water until they are tender, then make a syrup of the water and syrup, put the fruit in again, boil five minutes longer and seal as usual.

Another recipe that we have found satisfactory and very rich, is to cut the fruit in small cubes, put a layer in the bottom of a porcelain kettle, cover with a layer of sugar, fill the kettle with alternate layers and seal over night. In the morning pour off the juice and boil and skim it. When syrup is clear add the pineapple and simmer thirty minutes with very gentle heat. Turn into jelly tumblers and seal when cold.

Pineapples and strawberries are delightful together. The pine should be cut in cubes several hours before it is to be served and covered with confecturer's sugar and placed on ice. When ready to use steam the berries and mix.

Pineapple pie—This is much nicer than an apple meringue pie and since pie has at least come into its own and is being served at breakfast

Find Relief in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. — Their Own Statements So Testify.

Platen, Pa.—"When I wrote to you I was troubled with female weakness and backache, and was so nervous that I would cry at the least noise, it would startle me so. I began to take Lydia E. —Mrs. MARY HALSTEAD, Platen, Pa., Box 98.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional treatment. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, it has a swelling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is fully closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. No cures out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will send One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by local applications. Free.

The Three Guardsmen

By ALEXANDRE DUMAS

This musketeer had just come off guard, complained of having a cold and coughed from time to time affectedly. It was for this reason, he said to those around him, he had put on his cloak.

"Ah, Porthos," cried one of his companions, "don't think to palm upon us that you obtained that baldric by paternal generosity. It was given to you by that velled lady I met you with the other Sunday near the gate Saint Honore."

"No, 'pon honor. By the faith of a gentleman, I bought it with the contents of my own purse," answered he whom they designated under the name of Porthos. "I paid 12 pistoles for it. Is it not true, Aramis?" said Porthos, turning toward another musketeer.

This other musketeer formed a perfect contrast with his interrogator, who had just designated him by the name of Aramis. He was a stout man of about two or three and twenty, with an open, ingenuous countenance, a black, mild eye, and cheeks rosy and downy as an autumn peach. His delicate mustache marked a perfectly straight line upon his upper lip. He appeared to dread to lower his hands lest their veins should swell, and he pinched the tips of his ears from time to time to preserve their delicate pink transparency. He answered by a nod.

This affirmation appeared to dispel all doubts with regard to the baldric. They continued to admire it, but said no more about it, and with one of the rapid changes of thought, the conversation passed suddenly to another subject.

"What do you think of the story Chalais' esquire relates?" asked another musketeer. "He relates that he met at Brussels Rochefort, the tool of the cardinal, disguised as a capucin and that this Rochefort, thanks to his disguise, had tricked M. de Laigue, like a simpleton as he is."

"A simpleton indeed," said Porthos, "but is the matter certain?"

"I had it from Aramis," replied the musketeer.

"Indeed!"

the door remained open, every one became mute, and amid the general silence the young man crossed the antechamber in a part of its length and entered the apartment of the captain of the musketeers.

CHAPTER III.

The Audience.
M. DE TREVILLE was at the moment in rather an ill humor, nevertheless he admitted the young man politely, who bowed to the very ground, and he smiled on receiving his compliment, the pleasantness of which recalled to him at the same time his youth and his country, a double remembrance, which makes a man smile at all ages. But, stepping toward the antechamber and making a sign to D'Artagnan with his hand, as if to ask his permission to finish with others before he began with him, he called three times, with a louder voice at each time, so that he went through all the tones between the imperative accent and the angry accent.

"Athos! Porthos! Aramis!"

The two musketeers immediately quitted the group of which they formed a part and advanced toward the cabinet, the door of which closed after them as soon as they had entered.

"Do you know what the king said to me?" cried M. de Treville, "and that no longer ago than yesterday evening—do you know, gentlemen?"

"No," replied the two musketeers, after a moment's silence—"no, sir, we do not."

"He told me that he should henceforth recruit his musketeers from among the guards of M. le Cardinal."

"The guards of M. le Cardinal?" cried Porthos.

"Yes, yes," continued M. de Treville, growing warmer as he spoke, "and his majesty was right. M. le Cardinal related yesterday, while playing with the king, with an air of condescension not laugh in my face) had been forced to arrest the rioters. You must know something about it! Arrest musketeers! You were among them—you were! Don't deny it. You were recognized, and the cardinal named you. I don't see Athos! Where is he?"

"Sir," replied Aramis, in a sorrowful tone, "he is ill, very ill!"

"Ill—very ill, say you? And what is his malady?"

"It is feared that it is the smallpox, sir," replied Porthos, desirous of getting a word in the conversation, "and, what is worse, that it will certainly spoil his face."

"The smallpox! That's a pretty glorious story to tell me, Porthos! Sick of the smallpox at his age! No, no; but wounded, without doubt—perhaps killed. Ah, if I knew! Messieurs musketeers, I will not have occasion given for the cardinal's guards, who are brave, quiet, skillful men who, never put themselves in a position to be arrested, and who, besides, never allow themselves to be arrested, to laugh at you!"

Porthos and Aramis trembled with rage. Without all he had heard, as we have said, Athos, Porthos and Aramis called and had guessed from M. de Treville's tone of voice that he was very angry about something. Then curious heads were glued to the tapestry and became pale with fury, for their ears, closely applied to the door, did not lose a syllable of what he said, while their mouths repeated, as he went on, the insulting expressions of the captain to the whole population of the antechamber. In an instant from the door of the cabinet to the street gate the whole hotel was in a state of commotion.

"Well, captain," said Porthos, quite beside himself, "the truth is that we were six against six, but we were not captured by fair means, and before we had time to draw our swords two of our party were dead, and Athos, grievously wounded, was very little better. For you know Athos. Well, captain, he endeavored twice to get up and fell again twice. And we did not surrender—no, they dragged us away by force. On the way we escaped. As for Athos, they believed him to be dead and left him."

"And I have the honor of assuring you that I killed one of them with his own sword," said Aramis, "for my sword was broken at the first parry—killed him or wounded him, sir, as is most agreeable to you."

"I did not know that," replied M. de Treville, in a somewhat softened tone. "M. le Cardinal exaggerated, as I perceive."

"But pray, sir," continued Aramis, who, seeing his captain become appeased, ventured to risk a prayer—"pray, sir, do not say that Athos is wounded. He would be in despair if that should come to the ears of the king, and as the wound is very serious, seeing that after crossing the shoulder it penetrates into the chest, it is to be feared."

At this instant the tapestry was raised, and a noble and handsome head, but frightfully pale, appeared under the fringe.

"Athos!" cried the two musketeers. "You have sent for me, sir," said Athos to M. de Treville in a feeble yet perfectly calm voice. "What do you want with me?"

And at these words the musketeer, in irreproachable costume, belted, as usual, with a tolerably firm step, entered the cabinet. M. de Treville, moved to the bottom of his heart by this proof of courage, sprang toward him.

"I was about to say to these gentlemen," added he, "that I forbid my musketeers to expose their lives needlessly, for brave men are very dear to the king, and the king knows that his musketeers are the bravest fellows on earth. Your hand, Athos!"

The door had remained open, so strong was the excitement produced by the arrival of Athos, whose wound, though kept as secret as possible, was known to all. A burst of satisfaction hailed the last words of the captain, and two or three heads, carried away by the enthusiasm of the moment, appeared through the opening of the tapestry. M. de Treville was about to reprehend this infraction of the rules of etiquette when he felt the hand of Athos stiffen within his and upon turning his eyes toward him perceived he was about to faint. At the same instant Athos, who had rallied all his energies to contend against pain, at length overcame it, fell upon the floor as if he was dead.

"A surgeon!" cried M. de Treville. "Almo! The king! The best that can be found! A surgeon or my brave Athos will die!"

At the cries of M. de Treville the whole assemblage rushed into the cabinet without his thinking of shutting the door against any one, and all crowded round the wounded man. But all this eager attention might have been useless if the doctor so loudly called for had not chanced to be in the hotel. The surgeon declared that the situation of the musketeer had nothing in it to render his friends uneasy, his weakness having been purely and simply caused by loss of blood.

Then M. de Treville made a sign with his hand, and all retired except D'Artagnan, who did not forget that he had an audience and, with the timidity of a Gascon, remained in his place.

When all had gone out and the door had closed M. de Treville, on turning round, found himself alone with the young man.

"Tardon me," said he, smiling. "I respected your father very much. What can I do for the son? Tell me quickly; my time is not my own."

"Monsieur," said D'Artagnan, "on quitting Tribes and coming hither it was my intention to request of you in remembrance of the friendship which you have not forgotten the uniform of a musketeer."

"Well, young man," replied M. de Treville, "I inform you with regret that no one becomes a musketeer without the preliminary ordeal of several campaigns, certain brilliant actions or a service of two years in some regiment of less reputation than ours."

D'Artagnan bowed without replying, feeling his desire to don the musketeer's uniform vastly increased by the difficulties which he learned preceded the attainment of it.

"But," continued M. de Treville, fixing upon his compatriot a look so piercing that it might be said he wished to read the thoughts of his heart—"but on account of my old companion, your father, as I have said, I will do something for you, young man. I dare say you have not brought too large a stock or money with you."

D'Artagnan drew himself up, with an air that plainly said "I ask charity of no man."

"Oh, that's all very well, young man," continued M. de Treville, "that's all very well. I am well acquainted with all those lofty airs. I myself came to Paris with 4 crowns in my purse and would have fought with any one who would have dared to tell me I was not in a condition to purchase the Louvre."

D'Artagnan's ears became still more imposing. Thanks to the sale of his horse, he commenced his career with 4 crowns more than M. de Treville had possessed at the commencement of his.

"I will write a letter today to the director of the Royal academy, and tomorrow he will admit you without any expense to yourself. Do not refuse this little service. You will be learning riding, swordsmanship in all its branches and dancing; you will make some desirable acquaintances, and from time to time you shall call upon me just to tell me how you are going on and tell me whether I can be of further service to you."

"D'Artagnan, stranger as he was to all the manners of a court, could not but perceive a little coldness in this reception."

"Alas, sir," said he, "I cannot but perceive how sadly I miss the letter of introduction which my father gave me to present to you. It was perilously stolen from me."

He then related the adventure of Meung, described the well known gentleman with the greatest minuteness and with a warmth and truthfulness that delighted M. de Treville.

"This is all very strange," said M. de Treville, after meditating a minute. "You mentioned my name, then, about?"

"Yes, sir, I certainly committed that imprudence, but why should I have done otherwise? A name like yours must be as a buckler to me on my way."

"Tell me," continued M. de Treville, "had not this gentleman a slight wear on his cheek?"

"Yes, such a one as would be made by the grazing of a ball."

Knowledge Must Be Put to Use.
The mere possession of knowledge is nothing—it is totally useless unless it is used.—Herbert Kaufman.

An Impossible Task.
A leading woman's magazine is demanding that men shall be as good as women. They seem to forget that the average man has a hard enough time being as good as he is.—Washington Post.

Genealogical Trees.
I make little account of genealogical trees. Mere family never made a man great. Thought and deed, not pedigree, are the passports to enduring fame.—Gen. Skobleff.
